A Learn at Lunch Presentation

Jim Graham

Award-winning international photographer

“The Equestrian Life and the Land:
A Photographic Essay”

Join us for photographer Jim Graham’s stunning visual presentation of the many facets of the equestrian world he has covered, particularly in nearby Delaware, Pennsylvania and Maryland. Jim’s presentation will focus on equestrian activities and the symbiotic relationship between the participants and the land. Supporters of equestrian events have been strong financial benefactors in the effort to preserve the open space and environment we all share.

Jim Graham, a graduate of Washington College with a Bachelor’s in History, is a commercial and editorial photographer based in Centreville, Delaware. He works internationally as an editorial, commercial, wedding and fine art photographer, writer and educator. He recently published his first book, Bound to the Country, 30 Years of Photographing Mr. Stewart’s Cheshire Foxhounds. Among his many honors are being named Southern Photographer of the Year, Best News Photograph of the Year by the Society of Professional Journalists, and a nomination for a Pulitzer Prize.

Jim has worked as adjunct faculty teaching photojournalism and many other aspects of photography at Cecil College, The University of Delaware, Moore College of Art and Design, Widener University and the Maine Media Workshop. He has held regular exhibitions of his work in galleries around the East Coast, including a 2010 show at Miller Library on the Washington College campus.

Jim’s editorial clients include Vanity Fair, Town & Country, Time, Newsweek, USA Today, The Washington Post, The New York Times, Bloomberg News, The Associated Press, Newsweek, Sports Illustrated, National Geographic Traveler, The Philadelphia Daily News, The Philadelphia Inquirer, The Chronicle of Higher Education, The Hunt Magazine, Delaware Today Magazine and many others.
